Working Papers

Severe Food Allergies and Anxiety: Patient and Family Effects Uses a difference-in-differences model to show a causal relationship between severe food allergies and own anxiety diagnoses, as well as spillovers to family members.

Medical Assistance in Dying and Suicide Rates Among Older Adults: Evidence from Canada with Julian Reif, Jennifer Stewart, and Coady Wing Uses a difference-in-differences framework comparing Canada and the U.S. to examine whether Medical Assistance in Dying (MAID) legislation substitutes for or reduces non-assisted suicide rates.

Works in Progress

The Effect of Women's Health Clinic Closures on Community STI Rates
Uses a difference-in-differences model to explore the impact of abortion clinic closures on the sexually transmitted infection (STI) rates in surrounding communities.

Difference-in-Differences and Staggered Adoption Design Book Chapter with Jaehyun Choi, Seth Freedman, and Coady Wing Introduces difference-in-differences designs, showing why standard two-way fixed effects estimators fail under staggered timing, and extends the classic framework to modern stacked and imputation-based estimators for credible applied analysis.

Measuring Infant Mortality Using Synthetic Survival Curves with Seth Freedman and Coady Wing Develops a synthetic control method for cohort survival functions, applied to state abortion restrictions and first-year infant mortality. Presented at ASHEcon (2025)
